INTRODUCTION

Indian languages belonging to ancient Gojri is one of the central group of Indo-Aryan languages. It was well developed and rather official language in the 'Golden period of Indian History' i.e. 600-1400 A.D., spoken in whole of Norwest India. However various social and political factors forced migration of Gujjars from their stronghold, Gujrat, to the Sub-Himalayan mountainous regions especially Jammu and Kashmir, thus forcing the Gojri into oblivion for about three centuries. Gojri is now being revived in J&K, with fresh zeal and significant advancements have been made in past 50 years. Though Gojri is still spoken in Gujrat, Rajasthan, Delhi, UP, Punjab, Haryana, Himachal and parts of Pakistan besides J&K, its national character has been eroded, leaving it to be projected as a regional language. Now Gojri has resurfaced on the linguistic map of India, as a rich and prominent language, centralized in J&K, efforts are on to retrieve its scattered literature and the present volume is one sincere step in this direction. In the present scenario when research is on in the subject and Gojri is being introduced at school and university level, this volume will prove useful for teachers, scholars as well as students.

No Indian language can claim that its total vocabulary is recorded in a particular dictionary and that is true of Gojri as well. Dictionary making in tribal languages poses a compounded problem as there is very little literature available making it more of an 'anthropological -linguistics' rather than lexicography. But I noticed that walking along untrodden ways have a peculiar feeling of achievement and satisfaction.

I am no expert and don't claim to have any special qualification for lexicography, however, surely, I don't lack the will, dedication and passion needed for such projects. Since no incere efforts have been made by any agency or institution for compilation of any concise or bilingual dictionary in Gojri, I thought it appropriate to do the job myself which was compiled in over fifteen years of patience and persistent hard work.

Besides thorough study of scarce and poorly available Gojri literature, the mainstay of word collection was extensive and intensive field work particularly among rural masses residing in different areas with obvious dialectical variations, eg: Jammu- 7 years, Kashmir-5 years, and Rajouri-7 years in addition to the nativity of Pooch, the central province of Gojri language as studied by language experts. It took me long time as the project was managed single handedly involving no surveyors at any stage.

Substantial help has been taken in retrieving original Gojri words from various Punjabi, Hindi and Urdu dictionaries besides the sole monolingual 'Gojri Dictionary' published by J&K, Cultural Academy. Various English dictionaries including the 'Oxford', 'Chambers'; Advanced learners, Reverse Dictionary, and the Great Dictionary of English language by 'Reader's Digest' have been consulted in addition to the soft version of Encarta Dictionary, for appropriate meanings and additional useful information-technical and scientific of a particular entry word. Arrangement and computation of the vocabulary was handled personally and after one year of hard work and industrious labor the project was completed in June 2003, but before it could be preserved as a hard copy, the file 'Hamzaad' was mysteriously infected with a computer-virus and inadvertently reformatted by a close friend, unfortunately enough, bringing me back to square one. Encouraged by some friends and family members, with a heavy heart, I restarted the computation afresh and scratching my memory, could retrieve upto 80% of the original dictionary, which is being presented in this volume.

Though efforts have been made to follow the suggestions and recommendations of various scholars of lexicography, it may be too much to claim that this dictionary is perfect. However it will continue to be the first ever-sincere effort in the direction of 'Bilingual Gojri Dictionary' making.

Suggestions for improvement, from readers and patrons are welcome and will be duly incorporated in the subsequent edition.

Salient Features of Dictionary

Scheme of presentation

1. Entry word in local script.
2. Transliteration in Roman English.
3. Origion tag, wherever applicable, eg:E.P.S.Pb etc. The words without a tag are original 'Gojri' or common to many languages.
4. Part of speech tag eg.n.v.adj.etc.
5. Sub-class tag.eg. nf.nm. etc.
6. Speciallised scientific terms of fauna, flora and medicine etc. are given in italics.
7. Meanings have been arranged in order of their popularity of use and not historically.
8. Examples and citations from literary texts and folklore.
9. Descriptions are usually brief (in single line), as a concise dictionary can't afford to handle all the information, which an Encyclopedia contains or should contain, but at the same time efforts have been made not to miss the important relevant information peculiar to an entry word, especially cultural correlations of certain words, which don't exist in other languages.
10. Idioms & compounds have been included as sub-words with, of course some exceptions where it was imperative to include a particular compound as main-word.
11. Alphabetization: Since all the available literature in Gojri is in Persio-Arabic script, for the purpose of alphabetization, the pattern Of General orthography has been adopted (i.e. the spelling system as in English or Urdu) and not according to phonetic transcriptions as in Hindi or the lone monolingual Gojri Dictionary, which seem inconvenient to common user of Gojri.
12. Transcription:

    a) Like Punjabi language 'Gojri' has the problem of stressed and unstressed words as 'dili and dilli'and retroflex voiced and unvoiced as well as low-tones which have been represented by special symbols and signs.

CC-0. In Public Domain. Gurukul Kangri Collection, Haridwar

Digitized by Arya Samaj Foundation Chennai and eGangotri

b) Some modifications in pronunciation symbols have been adopted to make the volume more user friendly and in the process some deviation from phonetic-script was inevitable.

c) Due to lack of a consensus on standardization of script, 'Gojri 'Continues to face the problem in phonetic transcription. Thus efforts have been made to strike a balance between the available options leaving the more scientific job for future researchers.

d) Wherever differences exist in morphemes, both the forms have been included with a symbol, (=), indicating also written as.

13. Inclusion of few foreign words is inevitable in lexicography of any language and that is true of Gojri as well, but extreme care has been taken in selection, and entries are in accordance with the reshaped phonological structure of the receiving language.

14. Though efforts have been made to follow the suggestions and recommendations made by various scholars in, Lexicography in India' compiled by B.G.Misra, and those suggested by Dr.J.C.Sharma in 'Gojri Phonetic Reader' and 'Gojri Grammar' and of Dr.Lalita Handoo in' Students Urdu-Hindi Dictionary' it may be too much to claim that this dictionary is perfect. However it will continue to be the first ever sincere effort in the direction of 'Bilingual Gojri Dictionary' making.

Suggestions for improvement, from readers and and patrons are welcome, and will be duly incorporated in subsequent edition.

Forword

M Y Taing

Language constitutes the core of ethnic identity. It also forms the authentic gene-pool of its particularism. Gojri language though emasculated and enfeebled through the passage of torturous times is still the only hope of their recovery as a distinct nationality and restoration of their cultural personality. Centuries in a row, have been rather cruel to them and have inflicted discrimination, marginalisation and even defacement on this brave and once vibrant ethnic group. Their cultural territory has remained at the receiving end of cruel incursions; as a sequel to their political subjugation. But one of the saving graces has been, the very survival of Gojri language. This, on one hand provides the plasma for their resurgence and also provides a bulwark against their sinking into the precipice. I consider this a distinguishing feature of Jammu and Kashmir state that its pines and pastures still work as a preserving shield for Gojri language. Once upon a time; Gojri had free run right up to the Vindhya Mountains the demarcating line between north and south parts of Indian subcontinent.This language not only gave names to cities and taluqas; but even regions in this vast territory. It also became a fertilizing agent of forming the sweet and sublime Urdu language. Today, this line has receded back to the boundaries of J&K state, where Gojri is spoken and thus announcing their pristine presence. In the lands beyond, Gujjar blood groups, their peculiar and bold facial features, and even Gotras(subcastes) may also exist, but they are bereft of the defining mantra of their language. Results have been on the expected lines; they have lost their ethinc moorings and more dominating life styles, dress codes, modes of food and drink, marriage rituals and a host of attending peculiarities have swept them off their feet. The onward march of time has inflicted the ultimate punishment- the loss of theiir engaging face and ethnic demarcations.

It is a remarkable phenomenon that in their historical journey, Jammu and Kashmir has managed to remain as their survival park. Although they changed the track of religion, they did not allow their language to get inundated. I consider this to be a silver line of sorts in, otherwise a dark and bleak horizon. In my humble opinion, this source of light, however limited, can be utilized for making Gujjars shine and flourish and make them assert their substantive personality again. They are in the midst of surging torrents of uniformity and facelessness. They have largely been uprooted from their pasture-highlands and are consigned to face their much stronger fellow countrymen in uneven playing fields.

Jammu and Kashmir, by a quirk of 'history and geography' stands as their bastion. In this state they have the good fortune of having their life-boat around. This is their language. It may not be at its potent best, but it retains the invigorating elements of authenticity and originality. The strains of ancient Gojri rom high altitude meadows of Drass, to the dwarf Shivalik hills in Jammu and then to low lying plains of Kathua, weave a silken thread of the unity of J&K state itself. Gujjars live and toil in the length and breadth of J&K, from Paddar to Poonch and from Machel to Madhupur.....they are constantly on the move-whether spring or autumn, from times immemorial. In the process they absorb and pollinate the sights and sounds, aromas and echoes of various dialects- Kashmiri, Dogri, Balti, Shina etc.

and help construct bridges of invisible but powerful 'harmony'. This also forms an earthy arguement for the unity of a state- which is under strain from the forces of regionalism etc. One of the consequences of this interaction has resulted in the enrichment and enlargement of Gojri language. I have found allusions and idioms in it which describe the real character of Sultan Sikandar (1389-1412.A.D.) of Kashmir as well as the good governance of Raja Ranjit Dev(18th century) in Jammu. All these discourses need wider elucidations and illustrations, which the present format doesn't provide. But one thing must be said with utmost conviction-J&K is the most appropriate launching pad from which the vehicle of Gujjar identity can take off and the fuel for its flight will come from the Gojri language, which is intact only in this state. It was perhaps the latent pressure of this primordial force which made the first ever Gojri Dictionary to happen here about a quarter of a century ago.

It is a matter of great pleasure that Gujjar scholars have now realized the significance of carrying this good work forward. The thrust from within can release the hidden energies of this ancient language. We- Kashmiris are also busy in witnessing the blaze of colours which our language is exhibiting on a closer scrutiny by us, its own writers and speakers.

Dr. Rafiq Anjum represents the higher echelon of the modern Gojri scholarship. He is a multifaceted literateur- both at creative and analytical levels. He knows many languages and has even command on a few. He is well versed in modern methodology of research and philosophy. He is, with all his literary assets, capable to delve deep into the sublimities of Gojri. As an insider, he is the first to try a Gojri glossary with English translation and equivalents.No such attempt could be all inclusive, as the language is a flowing river and not a stagnant pool. It grows by the day and sheds by the night and one has not to impose any subjective standards on it. It really is gratifying that a scholar of Dr. Anjum's capacities, has chosen this wide open vista for his endeavour. I hope that this work will trigger off a movement in Gojri which may put the Gujjar language and their ethnic particularity in its proper perspective. The good news is that Gojri circles are already concious of this responsibility and have been busy at fostering proper channels to take care of these ventures. I may, most humbly claim some credit for lightening up a match-stick in this direction-Allham-du Lillah(All praise be for the Almighty Allah).

Foreword

Prof. Dr. J. C. Sharma

It has given me utmost gratification that efforts of Dr.Anjum have yielded results, helping Gojri to develop. I made a humble beginning to write Gojri Phonetic Reader and Gojri Grammar which got published and my efforts to publish Gojri-Urdu-Hindi-English Dictionary failed due to my in competency to handle Persio-Arabic script proposed for the language and my transfer from CIIL Mysore to Delhi on an administrative responsibility in 1984. The manuscript on Gojri Dictionary prepared by me got misplaced in my absence, which could not be redone. Since then it has been my wish to see a good Gojri Dictionary useful for Gojri as well as non-Gojri speakers. I conducted my fieldwork on Gojri mostly in Poonch district more than 30 years ago but my memories of Gujjars as lovable persons and places I visited are very fresh. This community who live close to nature and are simple-hearted with love for their country personally impresses me. Their humane qualities are superb... I am indebted to the people for the love they gave me and I feel it the same feeling that has prompted Dr. Anjum to ask me to write a foreword for his monumental work. I feel honored to do this job and feel that by this act of Dr. Anjum one of my own incomplete tasks has been completed. This bilingual dictionary will open path for non-Gujjars interested in the language and people. It will help to produce and translate literature in Gojri from other languages, which will help developing Gojri. Besides it will serve as a resource for researchers in Linguistics and Anthropology.

Usually in a dictionary due to the lack of time and limitation of compiler one dialect or variety is preferred in the name of a standard variety, which actually means death for other dialects or varieties. Dr. Anjum was aware of this fact and has tried to cover Gojri in totality, spoken in Poonch, Rajouri, Jammu, and Kashmir valley. By doing so it has helped enriching language.

The present work of Dr. Anjum who is a pediatrician, i.e. belonging to medical profession shows his passion and interest in his language which inspired him to grasp nuances of Linguistics and Lexicography. He has grasped the intricacies of producing a good dictionary on scientific lines as reflected in this volume. He has done such a gigantic work single handedly that he deserves all appreciation. He showed through his work his awareness of orthographical, word boundary word classification problems. More work of this kind will help standardizing orthography and spelling. Being a native speaker of the language as well as a Littérateur with insight in the language he has taken a holistic view of language by taking lexical items of other languages, which have been absorbed in the language, so he has shown his wisdom by looking at it as a growing and living language as opposed to puritans.

It is not the end but a beginning for good dictionary and further studies in the language. It is the process of language development to give way for future works. This can complement a thesaurus covering the greatest possible variety of semantic fields. There could be encyclopedia in the language.

It will help produce more literature in the language. To make use of the work Gujjar community need to be literate so that they can enjoy their literature. The day is not for when the holy 'Quran' may be translated in Gojri, which would be understandable, by common Gujjars following Islamic faith. I welcome this piece of knowledge and congratulate the author for all the pains he has taken to serve the mother language.

Preface

Shahbaaz Rajourvivi

Edward Sapar and Whorf like people have been deeply involved in simplifying the complex analysis of language formation. They have studied and expressed the deep effect of language in environ, universe, thought and perception. They even assert that 'word' is a concept in the context of semantics. It is a systematic placement of 'phonemes and then morphemes'. Then the combinations come into being and these varying combinations help the communication of ideas. Efforts are even made in finding out the relation between culture and language. Anthropologists believe that the universe is an objective entity and it is beyond the manifest approach of language. It is the realm of thought which interprets these objective aspects into a sequential 'word and sign' system, making it understandable to human society. It can be inferred, in the view of such scholars that it is 'language' which makes the universe intelligible, or the concept of universe is relative. It is a reality that societal and environmental change effects languages and the languages also change accordingly. Language doesn't limit or demarcate the ideas, but ideas help for expression in newer and non-traditional structural formations of language. It is said that English has about one-lac morphemes and through combinations these form one million words.

These few words formed an introductory step to the reat' academic' work of "Gojri-English Dictionary" compiled by a great pen-man, versatile littérateur, poet and writer in Gojri, i.e. Dr.Rafiq Anjum.'Gojri' is an important language in our state. It has a rich tradition of mystic thoughts rendered into various genres. It has an appealing melodious resonance when sung. Dr. Anjum has done a yeoman's service by compiling this voluminous work, which is bound to enhance the communicative value and strength of the language beyond the present regional limits. It will also prove to be a milestone towards introduction of the language at university level. It can be a treasure for common Gojri speakers, students and teachers and a 'must have' volume for writers and scholars. The able compiler has very successfully evolved the phonetic alternates of Gojri, which facilitate the readers, even beginners. Since various languages of this state have imbibed much vocabulary of Urdu/Arabic, some elucidations are still needed, for example, for multiple Gojri letters represented by English alphabetic signs. 'z' and 't', but that of course is the job of linguistic experts and beyond the scope of this volume.

The compiler has very painstakingly collected original Gojri vocabulary and has enriched the language by strong and unyielding commitment to the language. It was a novel haanu' نرهانو experience to come across words like' (tiLfoo~) for pine seeds. تِلفوں for seem, appear, and The realm of art and literature will unndoubtedly welcome and appreciate the efforts of Dr. Anjum, who has provided the first ever Gojri-English Dictionary, in the earnest service of the language and literature, without any conceived political mileage and glamour. He has presented a vast treasure of idioms, phrases, proverbs and rest of the ornamentation of literary worth. I appreciate and congratulate Dr.Anjum for his efforts in this behalf.

The poetry of Dr. Rafiq Anjum is an entity of sweet, lyrical and deeply thought provoking impression. His imagination touches the highest contemporary poetic sublimation, but this monumental work has added another feather in his cap and has further raised his stature.

Academic and literary works are always subject to debates, re-assessment and re-evaluation in time perspectives. This too is not an exception, but none can ignore or deny the value of this sincere and basic effort of Dr. Anjum in the evolutionary stage of the Gojri language and literature. I wish, him all the might of pen.

Dr. Rafiq Anjum represents the higher echelon of the modern Gojri scholarship. He is a multifaceted literateur-both at creative and analytical levels. He knows many languages and has even command on a few. He is well versed in modern methodology of research and philosophy. He is, with all his literary assets, capable to delve deep into the sublimities of Gojri. It really is gratifying that a scholar of Dr. Anjum's capacities, has chosen this wide open vista for his endeavour. I hope that this work will trigger off a movement in Gojri which may put the Gujjar language and their ethnic particularity in its proper perspective.
